8.1.2 The investment goal will be achieved by allocation of the money collected in the Fund in particular in short-term and mid-term bonds, money market instruments and bond funds denominated in CZK or, more precisely, with foreign exchange hedging in CZK. The Fund intends to concentrate its investments in bonds issued or guaranteed by the Czech Republic (up to 100 % of the value of the assets of the Fund) or, as the case may be, in bonds issued by a member state of the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD), the central bank of such member state, a reputable international financial institution or other entities with credit quality (Rating) specified in section 8.4.20 of the Prospectus. The instruments included in the portfolio of the Fund can be denominated in CZK, EUR, USD and local currencies of Central and Eastern Europe. Weighted average maturity period of the portfolio of the Fund shall not exceed 2 years. The sum of the values of the foreign-currency investment instruments and balances of the foreign-currency money accounts in respect of which foreign exchange hedging in CZK is not applied shall not exceed 7.5 % of the value of the assets of the Fund.

8.7 Characteristics of a typical investor

The Fund is intended for conservative investors with medium-term investment horizon who prefer low risk and the corresponding level and stability of the yield, and the intention of the investors is primarily to maintain the fair value of their money. The Fund is also suitable for investors without any knowledge of the principles and instruments of the capital markets and without experience in trading in investment instruments. A typical investor should be aware of the risks associated with investments in bonds, money market instruments and other instruments bearing the risk of bonds (including but not limited to credit, interest, foreign-exchange and concentration risk) and should be prepared to accept the risk of possible loss resulting from the investment. The Fund is suitable for investors who plan to invest money for at least 2 years.

9 INFORMATION ON THE RISKS

9.1 Risk profile of the fund

- 9.1.1 Prices of the Securities in capital markets can go up and down, and their development cannot be predicted. The yields achieved in the past are not a guarantee for achievement of the same yields in the future. The Investment Company tries to minimize the risks associated with the investment in Securities and to increase the probability of achieving the yield. A success of the investment or return on the amount invested, however, is not guaranteed.
- 9.1.2 The current value of the Unit (and thus the value of the investment) can increase or decrease relative to the purchase price.
- 9.1.3 The risk profile of the Fund based on the risk-yield ratio is represented primarily by the so-called Synthetic Risk and Reward Indicator (SRRI):

←Typically lower reward			Typically higher reward→
←Lower risk			Higher risk→
1	2	3	4	5	6	7

The synthetic indicator takes into account the fluctuation of the value of the Unit and illustrates the potential return on the investment relative to the associated risk profile of the Fund. The higher this number is the greater the return may be but also less predictable, and the investor may therefore also suffer a loss. Even the lowest number does not mean that the investment is completely risk-free, but it suggests that in comparison with higher numbers this investment offer a lower but more predictable return.

With respect to the date of creation of the Fund, the calculation of the synthetic indicator cannot be based on actual historical variability of the value of the Unit, and the calculation of the synthetic indicator relies on a modelled development of the value of the Unit based on the assumed placement of assets in state or company bonds or in bonds issued by financial institutions within the investment rating level with Weighted Average Maturity of 2 years.

As of the date of adoption of this Prospectus the Fund was included in risk category 2. This number of calculated based on the information from the past which is not always a reliable guide when it comes to the risk profile of the Fund in the future. Inclusion of the Fund in the respective risk category does not have to be permanent and the Fund can be later re-categorized. The synthetic indicator is re-evaluated on regular basis and the current information on its amount is published in a manner allowing remote access at www.rfis.cz and it can also be found in the Key Investor Information.

9.2 Types of risks

- 9.2.1 Credit risk – A risk that the issuer or the counterparty is unable to fulfil its financial obligations; most often the bond issuer does not fulfil its obligation to pay the agreed-upon interest or principal. In spite of the most careful selection of the Securities it cannot be ruled out that a loss will occur due to such failure of the issuers of Securities to fulfil their obligations.
- 9.2.2 Risk of insufficient liquidity – The Investment Company purchases for the Fund primarily Securities that are properly traded on domestic and foreign regulated markets or on organized markets which are generally recognized, are accessible to the public and function correctly, or on OTC markets. In addition, it purchases Securities from new issues whose issuance terms include an obligation to file an application for registration for official listing in a stock exchange or an organized market if the registration is achieved no later than one year after the issue of the Securities. In individual Securities, which are only traded to a limited extent or in certain segments of the stock exchange there may be a problem to sell the Securities at the required point of time or, as the case may be, to achieve a reasonable price at the required time, which could, in extreme cases, result in the Fund not being able to fulfil its obligations under requests for redemption of Units and in suspension of the issuance and redemption of Units according to section 13.3.4 of the Prospectus.
- 9.2.3 Risk of settlement – A risk that the settlement of a transaction will not be as originally expected due to the fact that the counterparty fails to pay or fails to supply the investment instruments within the set period. This risk consists primarily of the potential loss of investment opportunity. With respect to the fact that transactions of the Fund, with the exception of transactions whose nature rules this out (e.g., primary subscription for Securities) and with the exception of FX (foreign exchange) operations, occur essentially against a money payment (delivery versus payment) the risk of direct loss is low.

- 9.2.4 Market risk – A risk associated with an unfavourable development of the price or value of the individual asset values owned by the Fund including the value of hedging operations and assets in general (mainly prices of Securities, exchange rates or interest rates). This unfavourable development may be related to the macroeconomic situation, financial situation of the different issuers, or events which have indirect impact on the market development, e.g., political situation.
- 9.2.5 Operational risk – consists of a loss due to the lack or failure of internal processes or human factor, or due to external events and the risk of loss of property entrusted into custody or other administration which may be caused in particular by insolvency, negligence or wilful act of the party which has the Fund's assets or Securities issued by the Fund in custody or other administration.
- 9.2.6 Developing markets risk – Sum of risks which typically do not occur in most developed markets. The nature of these risk is:
- a) political, i.e., instability and volatility of the political situation and environment;
 - b) economic, i.e., high rate of inflation, risks associated with investments in recently privatized companies and with devaluation of the currency, insufficiently developed financial markets;
 - c) legal, i.e., legal uncertainty and generally difficult recognition and/or enforceability of rights;
 - d) fiscal, i.e., tax burden may be very heavy and there is no guarantee of a uniform and coherent interpretation of legal texts. Local authorities often have discretionary powers to create new taxes, sometimes retroactive;
 - e) risk of loss caused by the lack of suitable systems for transfer, valuation, payment, clearance, process of registration of Securities, custody of Securities and facilitation of operations.

The result of these risks may be increased volatility of prices of investment instruments.

- 9.2.7 Interest rate risk – is a risk of change of the interest rates. It is a special part of the market risk. Changes of market interest rates can result, among other things, from a change of the economic situation and the responding policy of the relevant central bank. If the market interest rates grow the prices of Securities with fixed interest rate usually decrease, and vice-versa. The price fluctuations caused by the changes of market interest rates are different, depending on the time to maturity of the fixed-interest Security. Fixed-interest Securities with shorter time to maturity thus have lower interest rate risk than the same Securities with longer time to maturity. Fixed-interest Securities with shorter time to maturity, however, have typically lower returns than fixed-interest Securities with longer time to maturity.
- 9.2.8 Currency risk – It is also a part of the market risk. It is related to the movements of the exchange rates of the currencies in which investments of the Fund are denominated, relative to the exchange rate of the Czech crown (CZK) in which the value of the assets of the Fund is kept. If the exchange rate of currency in which the investment is denominated relative to the exchange rate of CZK declines the value of the assets in the Fund goes down although the exchange rates of the relevant Securities in the capital markets are stable, and vice-versa.
- 9.2.9 Financial derivatives risk – the risk is inherent both in the systemic risk of the instrument itself (the underlying asset risk) and in the risk of failure of the counterparty. In view of the fact that financial derivatives will be applied within the Fund investment strategy especially as hedging instruments (currency and interest rate risk management), the most dangerous financial derivative risks are in that the performance of the underlying assets (interest rates, exchange rates, etc.) will be opposite to that expected and the Fund will miss the opportunity to generate sufficient yields. The Investment Company considers it important to warn the Unit-holders in connection with investments in derivatives about the fact that such financial derivatives represent financial contracts whose value depends or derives from the value of the underlying assets; derivatives bear risks which in some cases exceed risks inherent in more traditional investment in Securities, and derivatives may also face the leverage risk (low investments may result in both high yields and high losses).

- 9.2.10 Repo Deals risks – there are two basic risks inherent in Repo Deals; the counterparty risk and the underlying asset risk, i.e., the risk inherent in the investment instrument itself. In the event of Repo, it is mainly the counterparty risk caused, for example, by an increase in the exchange rate of the hedging investment instrument held on its account by the counterparty, which may give rise to intent not to return the investment instrument. In the event of Reverse repo, the risk is derived from the underlying asset, e.g., from the fact that a receivable held by the Fund needs not be repaid and the hedging investment instrument would be included in its assets. The Fund would in such cases face the risks associated with the holding of such investment instruments, in particular, the market risks.
- 9.2.11 Risk of premature dissolution, and/or erasure, of the Fund – due to legislatively defined reasons, e.g., if the Fund does not have a depository for more than three months or if the amount of the net asset value of the Fund does not reach at least EUR 1,250,000 within six months of the date of incorporation, or if the CNB withdraws from the Investment Company its licence to act as an Investment Company, decision of a court, or for reasons specified in section 15.3 of the Prospectus, the Fund may be dissolved or, more precisely, deleted from the list maintained by the Czech National Bank. With respect to this fact, it is not guaranteed that a Unit-holder can be Unit-holder of the Fund for the whole time of its investment horizon, which may have negative impact on the expected return on the investment.
- 9.2.12 Concentration risk – The risk consists of the possibility of a failure of the investment if the invested money is concentrated into a single investment instrument or a type of investment instrument or, as the case may be, due to uneven distribution of the invested money among the different issuers or types of issuers. The probability of a failure of the investments focusing on a certain type of investment instrument/issuer is affected by the joint risk factor, for example, conducting business in the same industry or the same geographic region, carrying out the same activity or trading the same commodity.

9.3 Risk management

The Investment Company is responsible for risk management and takes necessary measures to be able to check and measure at any time the risks associated with the different positions in the portfolio as well as the overall risk of the portfolio.

If the Investment Company manager the Fund so that it generates a loss, such loss shall be covered by applying any profits generated in the previous years. If they do not suffice, such loss shall be covered by reducing the net asset value of the Fund.
- 11.1.7 The assets and liabilities of the Fund shall be valued at fair value. The method of determination of the fair value of the assets and liabilities of the Fund and the method of determination of the current value of the Unit is in accordance with the applicable regulations, in particular Sections 190 through Section 202 of the Management Companies and Investment Funds Act.

justified cases, the Investment Company may determine the current value of the Unit valid for several days.

- 11.1.11 The current value of Units of the Fund shall be calculated with precision to 6 decimal places with subsequent arithmetic rounding to 4 decimal places.
- 11.1.12 The current value of the Unit shall be calculated as a share of the Fund net asset value and the number of Units. The determination of the net asset value of the Units will be based on the value of the Fund assets as of the date in respect of which the determination of the topical net asset value of the Unit has been determined. The Fund assets will take into consideration any accrued or deferred current expenses, in particular, fees listed in the Prospectus, for example, management fees, administration fees, depositary fees, fees for auditors, and any expected tax duties as of the date in respect of which the fund assets determination is performed. The Fund net asset value shall be determined as a sum of the values of capital funds, retained profit/loss, and the profit/loss for the current year.
- 11.1.13 In keeping with Section 5(3) of the Management Companies and Investment Funds Act, the provisions of Sections 1401, 1415(1) and 1432 to 1437 of Act no. 89/2012 Coll., the Civic Code, shall not apply to the management of the Fund.
